My sports hero is a swimmer called Colin Marr. At five years old he was already good at football and tennis. He didn't learn to swim until he was six, but by the age of seven, he was the school champion. A professional coach saw Colin swimming and wanted him to train for the national team. Colin worked hard. He got up at five o'clock in the morning to train in the swimming pool. Colin is now eighteen and he is the best swimmer in the country. He hopes to study Sports Science at university. He says he's lucky because he travels all over the world, but he finds it hard to swim in international competitions. Colin is a wonderful athlete, but he's my hero because he talks to children, helping them to see how important sport is. I'm sure, when he stops competing, he'll be a great coach.
